

Secure Track Solutions - Keyless car theft guide

If your vehicle has keyless entry, the car is constantly looking for its key. Normally, when you approach the vehicle, the car detects the key and unlocks it. The problem is that criminals can use specialist relay equipment to extend communication between the car and the key. Your key might be inside your house, but the equipment can make the car believe the key is right next to it. If the vehicle accepts that communication, the thief may be able to unlock and start the car without physically having your key.

- ☐ Keep keys away from doors and windows
- ☐ Use a tested Faraday pouch or key box
- ☐ Check whether your key has a sleep/deactivation function
- ☐ Keep vehicle software/security updates current
- ☐ Check the vehicle is locked before walking away
- ☐ Consider an immobiliser
- ☐ Consider a vehicle tracking system
- ☐ Use a visible physical deterrent where appropriate
- ☐ Use multiple layers of security, rather than relying on one system

Immobilisers & Trackers

An immobiliser adds an additional layer of protection by preventing the vehicle from being driven away without the correct authorisation, even if a thief gains entry or has access to the vehicle's key. A tracker provides an additional recovery layer by helping locate the vehicle if it is stolen. Used together, they create a stronger security system designed to help prevent theft and improve the chances of recovering the vehicle if a theft occurs.

CCTV — Deter, Detect & Provide Evidence

A professionally installed CCTV system adds another valuable layer to your vehicle and property security. Clearly positioned cameras can act as a visible deterrent, while recorded footage can provide valuable supporting evidence if suspicious activity, attempted theft or vehicle theft occurs. With the right camera placement and coverage, CCTV helps you monitor and protect your driveway, property, and vehicles around the clock.
